

Call for Papers

The Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) will host an Econ Summit on Climate-Related Risks to Housing at the Agency's headquarters in Washington, DC on Tuesday, November 12, 2024.

The Agency welcomes and encourages the submission of a broad range of research work. Topics include, but are not limited to: capitalization of natural disaster risk, loan performance in the wake of natural disasters, migratory responses to climate change, insurance and its relationship to homeownership burdens, the relationship between improved building codes and climate resiliency to housing market outcomes, energy efficiency and/or home performance improvements for both single-family and multifamily housing, and the effects of the transition away from fossil fuels on regional housing markets.

Papers are welcome from, but are not limited to, the fields of economics, real estate studies, and finance.

The deadline for submissions is 5:00 PM ET on Friday, April 19, 2024. Decisions regarding accepted papers will be communicated by the end of July.

Authors may submit complete papers or detailed abstracts that include preliminary results and a disclosure statement, following the AEA disclosure policy. Please email your submissions to econsummit@fhfa.gov with the subject line "Submission for FHFA Fall 2024 Econ Summit on Climate Risk." The cover page of each submission must include the paper title, abstract, authors, affiliations, and contact information including e-mail address(es). Questions regarding the call for papers or the summit may also be directed to econsummit@fhfa.gov

The conference will be held in person at FHFA headquarters at 400 7th St SW, Washington, DC 20219. FHFA will reimburse reasonable travel expenses in accordance with federal government regulation for those traveling from within North America.

PRIVACY NOTICE

For the purpose of gathering research papers for potential inclusion in the FHFA Fall 2024 Econ Summit on Climate-Related Risks to Housing, FHFA will collect personally identifiable information (PII) consisting of your (and any co-authors') full name and email address in order to contact you about your possible participation in the conference.

By submitting a research paper, you understand and consent to FHFA's collection of your (and any co-authors') PII for the above-stated purpose.

LEGAL DISCLAIMER

All materials submitted to FHFA for consideration, whether accepted or not, are treated as public and may be subject to disclosure.
